Ideas & Inspiration

FIND YOUR STARTING SPARK

Sometimes a scrapbook page begins with a memory. Other times it starts with a color combination, a layout idea, or a small detail that catches your eye and makes you think,
"I want to try that."

The inspiration in this Idea Book is meant to spark ideas and help you see the many ways the Designer Templates and paper in this kit can come together on a page.

Your starting point might be something simple like:

- your photos
- a color combination from the paper kit
- a layout idea that catches your eye
- a technique you'd like to try
- an idea you picked up from a Kiwi Club event

Let the pages ahead spark your creativity and invite you to Play-to-Create®.

GATHER YOUR MEMORIES & SUPPLIES

As you begin thinking about your next page, this is where you can start gathering the pieces you'll use to build your layout.

The Kiwi Club kit is designed to make this part easier. As you look through the photos, paper patterns, title ideas, and Featured Template Sets, you may start to see how your next layout could take shape.

Use this section to explore the building blocks of your page and gather the ideas and supplies that feel right for the memories you want to re-live.

FINDING YOUR PHOTOS AND MEMORIES

Every Kiwi Club kit is designed with themes, colors, and moments in mind—but the memories you scrapbook with it are completely your own.

As you look through the paper patterns, title cards, and layouts in this Idea Book, notice what stands out to you. You may find certain photos or memories coming to mind right away.

Your page might begin with:

- Themes in the Paper
- Title Card Sentiments
- Color Palette

These simple cues can help you quickly recognize which photos and memories might fit beautifully with this kit.

EXPLORE THE PAPER KIT

One of the beautiful things about the Kiwi Club paper kit is that the paper choices have already been thoughtfully designed to work together.

Each kit includes a balance of papers that help you build a page with ease:

- main patterned sheets that set the theme and personality of the layout (3 sheets)
- supporting patterns that layer beautifully with the main designs (3 sheets)
- background papers that help anchor your page and allow the design to stand out (6 sheets)

This gives you a chance to experience the Kiwi Lane paper formula in action through practice—seeing how patterns, colors, and backgrounds support one another on a finished page.

With the paper choices already working together, you don't have to worry about whether the patterns will match. You can simply create with confidence, knowing your page will come together beautifully for the memories it holds.

The title cards included in this kit are designed to fit beautifully within the suggested templates and layouts in this idea book. This ensures that your titles seamlessly blend into your page design.

Use Placemats as a foundation for your photos, giving each piece of paper a clear place to belong while helping your photos stand out. Add texture by running ribbon along the edges for a soft, dimensional finish.

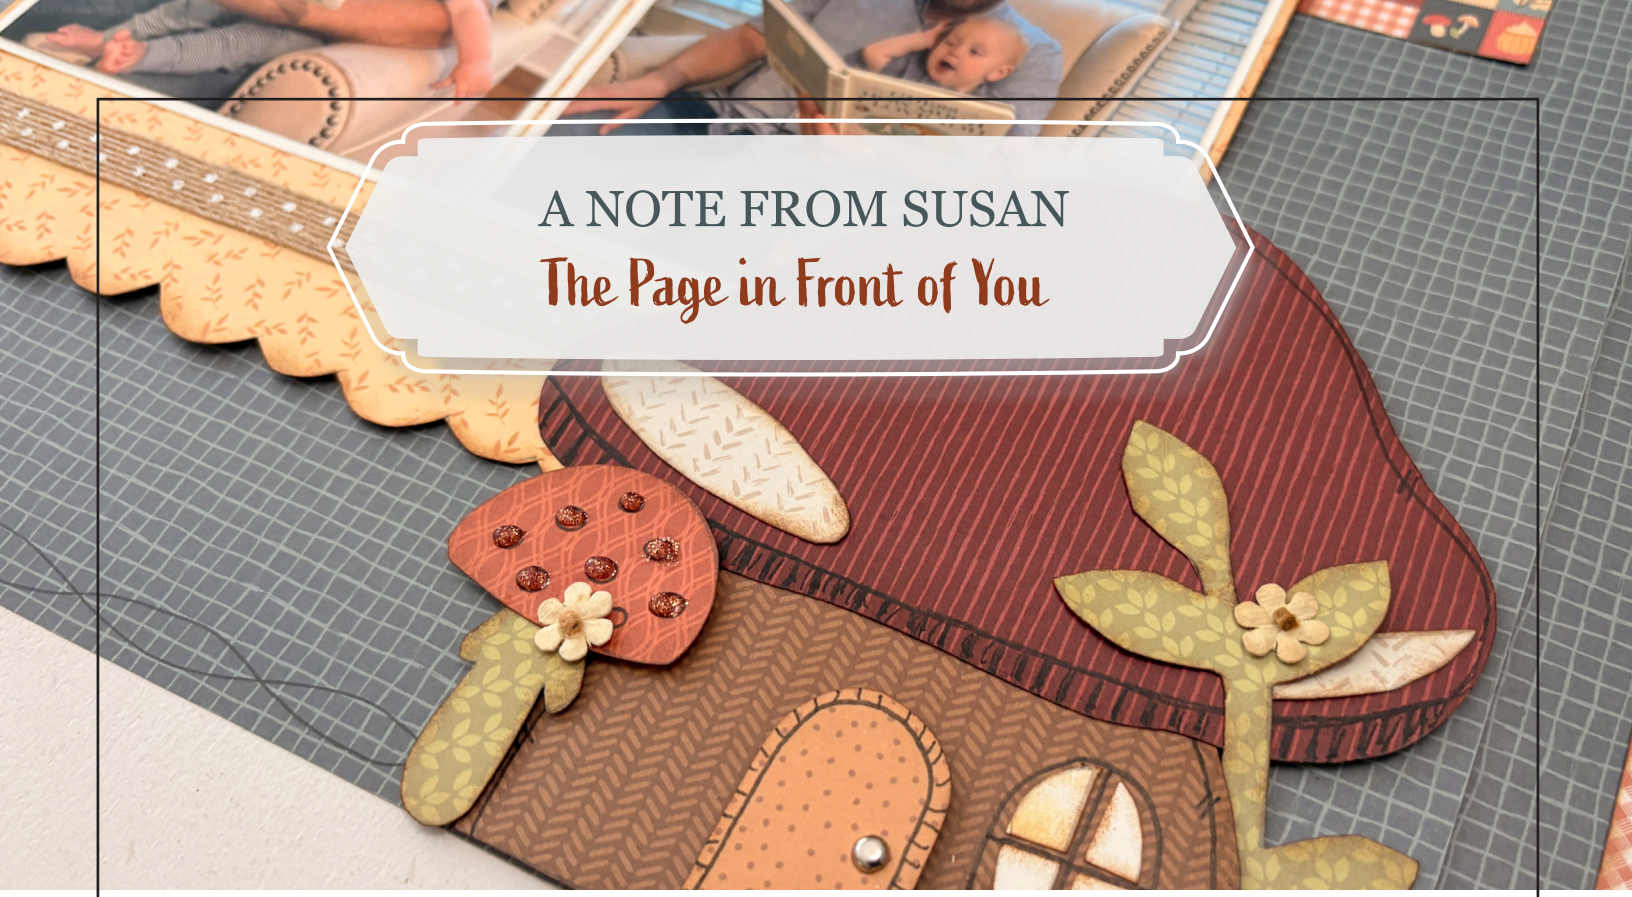

Take advantage of journaling cards to add a few meaningful details to your memories. Their compact size makes them easy to tuck into clusters, layer beside photos, or use as a small spot for a date, note, or favorite part of the story.

Add little details to your mushroom house to help it feel finished. Pen details, inked edges, tiny flowers, and small embellishments bring it to life and give it plenty of personality.

A NOTE FROM SUSAN

The Page in Front of You

I caught myself doing something this month that I know a lot of scrapbookers do.
I had one of the papers from this month's Kiwi Club kit that I really loved, my design was already worked out, and I still found myself thinking, But what if I want to use this paper for something else?

Paper FOMO.

Not necessarily because I was afraid I'd mess it up. Play-to-Create® had already helped me work through that part. I had a game plan. I knew where everything was going.
This was something different.

It was that little thought that maybe there would be a better page for this paper later.
And I had to remind myself: better than the memory sitting in front of me?

I think we do this more than we realize. We save the favorite paper, the embellishment we only have one of, or the little detail we love because maybe another page will feel more worthy of it someday.
But what are we waiting for?

Especially with a collection like Autumn at Home, so many of the memories we're scrapbooking may be ordinary ones. Home. Family. Slow mornings. Things happening in the kitchen. Everyday traditions. The little rhythms of life that don't always feel especially important while we're living them.

But those are often the memories that become incredibly meaningful later.
So I've been reminding myself to focus on the page in front of me.

Use the paper if it belongs there. Add the detail if it makes the page feel complete. Trust the game plan and cut into the good stuff.

Hopefully, there will be hundreds more pages to make. But the only page I can create today is the one sitting in front of me.

And I want to give that memory my best.

So if you catch yourself saving something you love from this month's kit, maybe ask yourself:
What am I waiting for?

Let the simple memories be worthy of the good paper.

Let the everyday moments be worthy of your favorite details.

Let the memories that come to mind be enough to make the page now, instead of saving your best for something you imagine might come later.

The page in front of you matters too.

Scrapbooking alongside you,

Susan

ENHANCE WITH LAYERS

These pages build on the foundation of the Designer Templates by adding layers—using additional papers, patterns, and textures to create more depth and dimension.

Layering can be as simple as adding an extra paper or incorporating a few complementary elements from your stash—while still keeping your design clear and balanced.

An invitation to explore how layering can expand your page while keeping the process approachable and fun.

Layer the Portrait Template and slightly offset each layer to create a dimensional canvas for your storybook setting.

Find natural spots within your design for journaling, dates, or other small details. Linda used the solid-colored body of her squirrel as the perfect place to add the date, turning part of the embellishment into a functional part of the storytelling.

Try adding textured touches to bring your scene to life—use wrinkled paper for a mushroom top, glitter paper for a little shine on leaves or smaller mushrooms, and rhinestones on spotted mushrooms for an extra touch of sparkle and dimension.

IN THE DETAILS

Here is where the finishing touches come into focus.

Small additions—like die cuts, stitching, ribbon, stamping, or other play-friendly elements—can add texture, interest, and personality to your layout.
These details often become the final layer that brings your page together.

A moment to pause, look over your page, and enjoy the little touches that make it uniquely yours.

Use Forage 4 to give a simple title card a little more shape and personality. Tracing the template along the edge adds a decorative detail that helps the title feel more connected to the rest of the layout.

Let your photos guide the design. Mix photo sizes and orientations freely—a larger Photo Block can hold two smaller photos, and horizontal and vertical photos can work beautifully together. Place a favorite photo in the center to create a natural focal point and balanced look.

Add finishing details to make your elements pop. Use Nuvo Drops for raised texture, sprinkle on glitter while wet for shimmer, then add fine-line pen details once dry to define edges and add personality.

Use texture to bring simple shapes to life. Jennifer used embossing, sanding, crumpling, and ink to add depth and dimension to the mushroom house, leaves, and wood rounds.

If an embellishment cluster feels like it's floating on the page, add a simple shape behind it to help anchor it. Jennifer used Rings to create wood rounds that grounded her clusters and tied beautifully into the fall nature theme.

Use title cards as a natural way to add both story and a title to your layout. They can help you work in a few meaningful words without needing a large journaling area.

Use Rings as a contained space for photos and embellishments, then use the inner rim to create a staircase of mushrooms, arranging them from smallest to largest for a playful stepped effect.

Bring Chews Happy and Turbo Arrows back into play, using their thin, spiraling stems to coordinate with each other and draw focus toward the photos.

Create a leafy cluster using a variety of templates from Cozy Colors, Tiny Seasons, and other sets. Nestle a title card, journaling, or a photo among the leaves to create a fun, tucked-in nest effect.

Combine Toadstool 1 and 3 to create something completely unexpected—like the beginning of the wire whisk held by the squirrel. Look beyond the original shape and see how different template pieces can work together to build custom details.

Keep it simple and use layered paper to create depth and dimension. Tuck an extra layer beneath the roof of a mushroom house, add a second layer along the rim of a bowl, or repeat this technique anywhere you want an element to feel a little more dimensional without adding extra embellishments.

Round the corners of your photos for a softer look that blends more naturally with curved templates and whimsical design elements.

Simple & Balanced

By Jody Vasquez (Design Team)

For a subtle textured look, run your mushrooms and leaves through a roller to give the paper a soft, rumpled finish that adds just a little extra dimension.

Use a large template shape as a canvas for a mini scene. The cutting-board shape creates a natural backdrop where the raccoon, mug, title, and embellishments can all live together without feeling scattered.

BEYOND THE KIT

As you settle into the creative rhythm, it becomes easier to create additional pages using papers from your stash—because you begin to recognize what works together.

The Designer Templates remain your design tool, ready to guide new pages with whatever papers and supplies you choose.

These ideas show how the same templates can continue to work beyond the kit—so your creativity doesn't stop when the paper kit is used.

A reminder that what you already have can still come together beautifully.

BEYOND the Kit

Turn empty space in photo rows or collages into a design area. Add textured embellishments, like embossed kraft cardstock, to mimic natural details and create a dimensional, intentional cluster.

Create a loose bundle of thread and tuck it between layers of embellishments for an easy touch of texture and dimension. It's a simple way to add interest using something you likely already have in your craft supplies.

Add texture to your mushrooms with a liquid dimensional medium like Glossy Accents, Nuvo Drops, or Liquid Pearls. Create dots in a variety of sizes to give the mushroom tops extra dimension and a playful, spotted finish.

LET'S CREATE TOGETHER

One of the most special parts of Kiwi Club is knowing you're creating alongside others—even when you're scrapbooking at your own table.

Each month we highlight the current Kiwi Club kit through layouts, tips, events, and this digital Idea Book so everything is ready when you are. The goal isn't to keep up with a schedule—it's to make it easier to turn your kit into finished pages whenever you sit down to create.

Our community events are simply one of the ways we support that rhythm. They give you a place to pull up a chair, work on your pages, and build creative confidence over time while seeing how others are using their kits.

Most importantly, they're a reminder of something simple: you don't have to do everything for this to work—and you are not alone.

When you return to scrapbooking—whether that's tonight or next week—you'll find the inspiration, examples, and guidance gathered in one place. That rhythm helps you come back to creating on your own timeline, without needing to hunt for ideas or wonder where to start.

If you'd like to join in, you'll find us in the Kiwi Lane Circle community. You can RSVP for this month's gatherings, share your finished pages, or simply stop in to see what others are creating with their kits.
